Are the Results of the Revolution That Has Upset Mexico.

Where Carranza's Financial Representative Shows His Hand.

Slur Upon the Priesthood and Church Absolutely Underserved.

CARRANZITA WORK IN YUCATAN

The revolution in Mexico brought the Constitutionalists into power. On rather, the revolution plus the good services of Washington achieved that result. The Constitutionalists are pledged to reform. Their watchword and battle cry has been reform. They have stood forth as the saviors of the peon class. They are now beginning to put their ideas into practice. They are seeking to fulfill their pledges to the Mexican working people. The State of Yucatan has been the conspicuous ground for the inauguration of their work. Gen. Salvador Alvarado is Governor of that place. The visit of that gentleman to New York in connection with the building of a proposed Government railroad has been the occasion for an article on his work in the New York Call of May 28. Modesto C. Rolland, a "full-blooded Indian," financial agent of the Mexican Government in New York, whose picture and opinions have appeared frequently in the Call, is the narrator of Alvarado's achievements. So far, it is declared, the following specific reforms have been attained in Yucatan: An agrarian law has been adopted, returning the land to the peons; a modern department of agriculture has been founded and agents sent out to educate the planters; a school system for adults and children has been established; lecture courses have also been begun; the public service corporations are to be taken over by the Government and a $50,000,000 corporation has been formed to build a state-owned railroad from the Pacific to the Caribbean; "home rule" is being granted to the cities and the villages of the State. With all of this, we understand, President Carranza is thoroughly in accord.

"Before the revolution," it is stated, "there was considerably less than a hundred schools in the whole State. Now there are 2,400. These schools have taken the place of the churches. Formerly there was a priest upon every hacienda, but now there is a school. The churches have been closed for some time, and at first a few of the people were surprised that the heavens did not fall. But as nothing very dreadful happened, they soon became accustomed to the change. The priests have of course opposed the reforms at every step, and have been allied with reactionary interests."

This is indeed interesting—if it all be true. Some of the reforms noted are certainly desirable. There is much reason to suspect that they are in the main reforms merely on paper. The jump from 100 schools to 2,400 in so short a time is rather dubious, to say the least. The $50,000,000 corporation will have to show the whence and whither of its finances before we can unreservedly rejoice in it. Revolutions have always acted in this peculiar way. They have promised much to the people of the "lower" classes; they have in the first few years of success and power endeavored to fulfill their promises and partially done so. But when a few more years have rolled by, it has been found that their programme has been of injury rather than of assistance to the poor. So do we fear will prove the much touted change in Mexico. What great sufferings that revolution has caused to the workers in that stricken country we already have in part been told.

The slur upon the priesthood and the church is absolutely undeserved. It is there that Carranza's New York financial representative shows his hand. With the economic reforms in Yucatan the church in itself has nothing to do. With the particular manner of carrying out agricultural activities it can scarcely be held responsible. It has not been in charge of the Government. In the manner of education it has been handicapped for over a hundred years. That is always forgotten in the stories told today of Mexico. The church can not be under indictment for abuses in Mexico. She has been hampered in her work at every step. She has been prohibited from carrying on the work of education. "The Schools Supplanting Church in Yucatan" runs the headline in the article from which we have quoted. That is a foolish and malignant statement of the case.

The noted traveler, Alexander von Humboldt, in his Essai Politique, has something to say of conditions among the laboring people before the church was overpowered in Mexico. He writes from his own experiences in that country. It may be pardonable to state his phrase again—a phrase which has no doubt been quoted before. "Nowhere," he says, "do the common people enjoy the fruits of their labor more than in Mexico. The Indian laborer is poor but he is library."

His condition is much preferable to that of the peasantry of a large part of northern Europe." And Lummis, who gives the words of Humboldt in this regard, has this to add: "The Indian laborers were not slaves. There was no mita in Mexico; no compulsory labor in mines; no labor without wages. The Indian who did not like the mine, or its administrator, or its wages, was perfectly free to go elsewhere—or to stay out altogether."

The true story of Mexico should be told. It will not throw a shadow in any way upon the Catholic church as certain gentlemen seek so painfully to do. It will show that the church has brought a light to Mexico and a policy of justice to the laborer, and that this was destroyed only by those who sought to destroy the church. We fear that the representatives of the Carranza Government should learn better the history of their country. We can not believe from past knowledge that their "reforms" will last. We know well how they stand on the question of the church in Mexico. And we know even better how strenuously Washington strove to help them to that power, by which they have been able to put their idea as to the church into practice. C. B. of C. V.

MASS FOR IRISH MARTYRS.

On Tuesday morning, June 20, a memorial requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Mary Magdalene's church in honor of the Irish revolutionists who fell fighting or were cruelly executed in connection with the recent uprising in Ireland. Permission has been granted by Bishop O'Donaghue for this mass, which will be strictly a religious observance. Bishop O'Donaghue will be present and all sympathizers with the cause of Irish freedom are expected to attend. The memory of the men who were executed by the British Government in Ireland is being commemorated in the churches throughout the country. In Chicago memorial masses were celebrated in not less than forty churches this week.

REGULATES DANCING.

The Right Rev. Denis O'Donaghue, Bishop of Louisville, this week received notice of the decree made by Pope Benedict XV, forbidding dancing at all picnics, entertainments and social functions given by Catholic churches or by societies or organizations for the benefit of any religious institutions under Catholic auspices. The decree, which merely is the universal enforcement of the legislation of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore, was dated at Rome, March 31. Dancing as such is not forbidden, but discipline requires all persons who find in any sort of dancing the occasion of sin to refrain from the practice. The decree from Rome now gives the prohibition the highest sanction of the church and makes its enforcement compulsory upon all Bishops and priests throughout the whole world. Bishop O'Donaghue said Tuesday night that he would immediately direct all pastors in the diocese to see that the decree is strictly enforced.

FATHER GASSER INJURED.

The Rev. Father Alphonse Gasser, assistant priest at St. Martin's church, was hit by an automobile at Shelby and Broadway Wednesday evening and seriously injured. Father Gasser had been talking with Magistrate Frank Dacher, and when he started across Broadway he was struck and thrown about forty feet. He was at once removed to St. Anthony's Hospital and it was some time before he regained consciousness. Upon examination it was found he had suffered a slight concussion of the brain, two scalp wounds, his right forearm fractured and that he had a deep bruise on the right thigh. The machine was driven by Frank Henderson, an automobile salesman, and of course "was going slow."

Irish Press News Service.

The Irish World received this week the last letter written by Patrick H. Pearse, President of the Irish republic. It was written to his mother, whom he was not allowed to see before his death, in which he said in part:

I just received holy communion, and have, except for the great grief of parting from you. This is the death I should have asked for if God had given me the choice of all deaths—to die a soldier's death for Ireland and for freedom. We have done right. People will say hard things of us now, but later on will praise us. Do not grieve for all this, but think of it as a sacrifice which God asked of me and of you."

Prisoners have been taken from nearly every county in Ireland and on June 2 about 1,700 were still confined in English prisons. The list of names is curious as shown in the class and character of the revolutionists. In Richmond Barracks was confined a Count and Countess, an Alderman, an editor, a Marquis and several tramway workers. Justice Breton, of Athlone, who was made a prisoner by the revolutionists at a barricade near the Four Courts, made the following statement after his release:

"The rebels were not out for massacre, for burning, or for loot. They were out for war, observing all the rules of civilized warfare and fighting clean. They fought like gentlemen. They had possession of the restaurants stocked with spirits, yet there was no sign of drinking. I was informed that they were all total abstainers. They treated their prisoners with the utmost courtesy—in fact they proved by their conduct what they were men of education, incapable of brutality."

Former Congressman Bourke Cockran, of New York, addressed a meeting at the Metropolitan Opera House in Philadelphia for the benefit of the Irish relief fund. Michael J. Ryan, President of the United Irish League, presided, and upwards of $15,000 was contributed at the meeting for the cause of the widows and orphans of the revolutionists executed in Ireland. Mr. Ryan has been President of the official Redmond organization in this country. Mr. Cockran has been Vice President of the United Irish League, but he called upon members of the Irish race throughout the world to denounce the policy of reconciliation of Ireland to the "alien conquerors," a policy into which he confessed he had been beguiled by illusory hopes. He advised casting overboard the home rule policy and the leadership of John Redmond.

The railway and tram companies of Ireland have discharged all employees suspected of membership in the Sinn Fein, the Gaelic League or the Irish Volunteers. The Thomas Lipton chain of tea stores have done likewise. The shipping companies have taken the same stand. Gen. Sir John Maxwell issued an order forbidding all processions, political meetings, printing or athletic games or other sports without the written permission of the military authorities. There is a scarcity of sugar and tea in Dublin, where the prices of these commodities are almost prohibitive. Half starved children in rags are driven from the streets by the police.

Irish Press News Service.
Thirty-six more prisoners were taken at Enniscorthy and conveyed abroad. Houses are raided at night, and much suffering prevails among the families of the rebels. The 120 local members of the Gaelic League are in prison, among them C. J. Irwin, owner of the Echo; P. Kehoe, author, and a number of county officials and Government clerks.

Irish Press News Service.
The Mayo News has been suppressed by the military and the editor, P. J. Doris, arrested. His brother is a member of Parliament. Some eighty prisoners were taken to Balaghaderreen, several sentenced to penal servitude. J. P. Gaffney, professor of chemistry, has been arrested at Ballinasloe.

Irish Press News Service.

Suspected houses have been raided nightly at Limerick. The leaders of the Gaelic League in County Limerick towns are under arrest. Squads of cavalrymen passed through Limerick bound for the West to bring prisoners away. Cornelius Colvert, shot by court-martial, was a nephew of the late Justice Colvert, of Gale View, Athlone, a leading family. City Treasurer O'Toole has been released.

TWIN CITY LEAGUE

Diamond No. 1 at Shawnee Park will be the Mecca for thousands of amateur ball fans tomorrow, and especially those interested in the Twin City League as the K. of C. team, the present leaders, are scheduled to meet the Champs, who are still smarting under their defeat by the former, and the only defeat of the season by the way. This is the first time in five seasons that the Champs have not been leading the procession at this time and it is getting on their nerves, so to speak. A battle for second honors will be staged between Mackin and Bertrand on diamond No. 2. On diamond No. 3 the Imperials and Orioles will battle for next honors, being tied in games won and lost, while Olympics and Trinity will fight it out on diamond No. 4. Every game should be interesting as it means much to all. The standing to date:

Clubs	W.	L.	Pct.
K of C.....	8	0	1,000
Champs.....	7	1	.875
Mackin.....	4	4	.500
Bertrands.....	4	4	.500
Imperials.....	3	5	.375
Orioles.....	3	5	.375
Olympics.....	3	5	.375
Trinity.....	0	8	.000

Interest in the contest to send the two most popular members of the Twin City League to the world's baseball series is becoming quite pronounced and votes are being cast pretty lively for the different favorites. Among those receiving votes this week were Merlin Hogan, of the Champs, Ray Haragan, of the Imperials, Eddie Steinbeck, of the Bertrands, Eddie Morris, of Mackin, J. Scully, of Olympics; Bobby Burns, scorer, and others. The two receiving the highest number of votes will be sent with all expenses paid to the world's series, the Kentucky Irish American having made this offer due to its interest in the Twin City since its inception.

IRISH RELIEF DAY.

This Saturday has been set aside all through the United States as Irish relief fund day, and everywhere friends of Ireland are earnestly entreating to raise a fund for the relief of the suffering men, women and children in that oppressed country. Victims of the revolution are in dire want and distress, and have few to appeal to outside this country, who will not fail to answer promptly and liberally. Cardinals Farley, Gibbons and O'Connell are Honorary Presidents of the Irish Relief Committee, which is headed by Thomas Addis Emmet, of New York.

Public Sentiment in This Country Against England's Dominating Policy.

Christian Herald, of New York, Expresses Opinion of General Public.

Compares England's Tactics to That of Attempt to Crush Early Christianity.

EXECUTION OF IRISH UNJUST

That there is an anti-English sentiment growing rapidly in the United States there is no doubt, and it is believed that knowledge of this has caused President Wilson to use strong words in his latest message to England concerning the riding of our mails and interference with American shipping. Despite the efforts of the pro-English press it was claimed these columns since the outbreak of the war that the masses of the American people had no love for England and that they were utterly opposed to the "hands across the sea" policy advocated by Henry Watterson and others of the Twin City League. The plea that England was the friend of little nations, etc., fooled some of the people, who believed that John Bull was interested in Belgium for the latter's good, but the policy of the British Government in its murder of the Irish revolutionists exposed the known brutality which it has always practiced in dealing with weaker nations or individuals. The Christian Herald, a Protestant publication, published at the Bible House in New York City, pretty near furnishes the keynote of public opinion in this country in the following in its latest issue:

History records few acts so stupid and so unjust as the recent wholesale executions of the leaders of the Irish rebellion. Acts which were in themselves stupid. But the stupidity of this act at this particular time is immeasurable. England and her allies have been trying to make the world believe that they stand for a higher and truer type of freedom than do their enemies. Sir Edward Grey, in a long and careful interview reprinted in a recent number of the New York Times, states this claim seriously and earnestly. That England is fighting for an international method that shall end all war and for a true and real type of liberty. In claiming that this has been the past spirit of Britain Sir Edward appears for the moment to have forgotten the Transvaal, not to go farther back than the present century.

There are many peculiarly ugly and distressing features in the whole regrettable affair. First of all, the men might have been granted the consideration usually extended to prisoners of war. This was desirable from every point of view, rather than to remove them with swift and savage slaughter. Another shocking element was the youth and pure idealism of the victims. Pauline Pearce, President of the short-lived republic, was schoolmaster, author and poet. Joseph Plunkett, twenty-five years old, was a poet and editor, a man of unusual attainments as a scholar. Daly was but twenty-four years old. William Pearce, thirty years old, was tutor and sculptor. O'Hanrahan was also an editor. F. Sheehy Skeffington, one of the victims, seems to have been entirely guiltless of participation in the present rebellion. He was also an editor, and had resided for some time in America. Worst of all was the admission in Parliament that Skeffington and two other journalists had been executed "without the knowledge of the military authorities, and before martial law was actually in operation." Joseph Plunkett was married a few hours before his execution, his bride wearing widow's weeds. Heartrending stories are told of the anguish of his studies.

FRIENDS ARE ELATED.

The legion of schoolmates and friends of John F. Rees were elated when news reached here Tuesday from Washington that he had passed a successful final physical examination for admission to the United States Naval Academy. Young Rees is the son of John N. Rees, of the Evening Post, and was graduated from the Munnell Training School with high honors. He had already passed all other examinations and will enter at once on his studies.

mothers and wives of the executed men. And many signs point to altogether unreasonable severity in hastening the executions.

The unwisdom of the British Government's harsh methods with the Irish rebels lies not only in the fact that it lessens her international influence for justice, liberty and peace, but that it resurrects and energizes in the people of her dependencies the very thing she tries to kill. It would seem that statesmen ought to realize by this time that you can not kill a movement by killing its leaders. This is what Herod and Nero tried to do with Christianity, but the blood that fell from the necks of their victims became the seed from which hosts of new believers arose, and in less than three centuries, instead of the Roman Empire having conquered Christianity had conquered the empire. The method has been tried with scholars as well as with saints, but history shows that you do not kill a scientific or sociological principle by killing the men who teach it. And what is true of saints and scholars is true of patriots. To kill them simply produces more patriots. Of course nations and races have been subdued and exterminated by wholesale slaughter or overwhelming military conquest, but to kill the spirit of revolt by killing the leaders of revolt is a thing that can not be done.

As has been clearly pointed out recently by several scholarly writers, the secret of universal peace and brotherhood will come by expanding the spirit of patriotism, broadening it from province to nation, from nation to confederations of nations, till it shall embrace all the world.

England has missed a rare chance of sublimating Irish patriotism to this broad and high purpose. Her troubles with Ireland are more acute than ever. And she has added a score of earnest faces and staunch of Irish martyr-heroes.

THAT LITTLE GREEN ISLE.

Never in the history of the world has there been so much kindly consideration shown to the Irish race as recently. It was not a question as to the good sense or otherwise of the revolution, as the Buffalo Union and Times well says, but rather the manner in which the situation was handled by the British Government. For instance, almost every daily paper in the United States spoke friendly word. Many of them went to unusual length to show their disapproval of the military regime, and all voiced the thought that, in this day at least, government by oppression can not be a success and must not be tolerated. Over all the world, even in England itself, the word goes out that Ireland deserves better, and that at least the day of retribution is at hand. Let us hope so. It has been a long night for Ireland. Years came and went, cycle followed cycle, even century followed century, but still ever the cup of the enemy, rich and rosy as it looked, was dashed to the ground, and fidelity to the faith and fatherland dominated and was preserved. What a glorious history! What a story of heritage! What a stupendous birthright the Celt can look to—a page without a blemish, a race true to God and country, a record matchless and imperishable! For such a result every member of the Celtic race can find a place of honor and be thanked. Bishop and Archbishop, priest and doctor, lawyer and statesman, soldier and civilian, skilled and unskilled, poor and rich, gentle and simple, all have their names on the roll of honor. But beyond all, in the order of men and in the vanguard of God's distinction, has been, as it still is and ever will be until time shall be no more—the motherhood of the race, the sentinels and protectors and angels of the fireside and the home! To them we owe the history and the devotion of these most loyal people of the church and heroes of the world. To them we lift our swords in deference and our hearts in affection, and in our inmost souls reverence as we pray God save Ireland!

TIRESONE FANATICS.

The leaders of the Prohibition party have sent us a communication announcing that they have inaugurated a pledge campaign to get 5,000,000 voters in the United States to vote against any party or any candidate who does not openly favor national prohibition. As the Indiana Catholic insists, these men are monomaniacs, bad Americans and fanatics now as they always have been. A man has a right to be in favor of prohibition if he believes in it. We have no fault to find with him for that, but there are before this country now other issues far more important, and any day we are likely to have a situation where still more vital issues will be before the public. Should a good American citizen, who is right on all the other great issues, be defeated or voted against because he doesn't subscribe to prohibition? The most temperate men in this country, men whose lives are models of sobriety and who are public benefactors of the first rank, don't believe in prohibition. It is hard for any man who is intelligent and not a fanatic to believe in something that has proven a flat failure everywhere it has been tried. We don't believe the prohibitionists will get 5,000,000 bad Americans to ignore all the other issues and go crazy enough to do the bidding of a bunch of rabid fanatics. Prohibition prevails in Turkey, but in no Christian or civilized country. The best, purest, truest, most moral people in the world have used wines and beers in moderation for generations and they are today morally and intellectually the superiors of the prohibition fanatics in the United States.

WHAT WE NEED.

It is particularly unpropitious just now, when the country is confronted by threatening signs and uneasy portents on all sides, for men to engage in sowing the poisonous seed of suspicion and the feeling of religious hatred. There was never a day when the busy spreader of religious dissension was more a public enemy. There was never a period in all our history when it seemed more vital to our continued existence that all classes and conditions of Americans, embracing every race, faith, color, idea, ideal and aspiration, should be made to realize the common duty and the common destiny of all Americans. Yet there are those who disseminate hurtful charges of disloyalty with the sole purpose of implicating those not of their religion in supposedly unpatriotic designs—their shafts being mostly aimed at Catholics. It is not important who holds the offices; but it is of immense importance to the republic that the methods by which men are elected to office, or are defeated, should be open, legitimate, fair and American.

FRIENDS OF FREEDOM.

The Friends of Irish Freedom are sweeping the country. The New York Gaelic American reports that branches are being formed everywhere, and men and women who have not touched Irish organizations for years and who only took a languid interest in any kind of national movement are flocking by the thousand to the colors. England hoped by a policy of sternness and repression in Ireland to terrorize the Irish people at home and to convince the Irish in America of the hopelessness of attempting to do anything for a cause that she fondly hoped was lost. But the Irish are always at their best when fighting against heavy odds, and England will be disappointed again.

The Irish at home are angry, while in America they are aroused as they have never been in living memory. In nearly all the cities meetings are being held and resolutions passed denouncing the murder of the Irish prisoners of war by England and pledging undying fealty to the cause of Irish independence.

THEY CAN NOT HURT.

The New York Advocate, evidently with Mayor Mitchel in mind, observes that there are some "Catholics" who actually imagine they are doing a very bold thing when they attack the church to which they nominally belong, and incidentally think that by so doing they are showing a liberal spirit which can not fail to command them to their non-Catholic acquaintances. It is quite possible, however, that their non-Catholic acquaintances may look upon their attitude as cowardly, if not contemptible to a marked degree. The manly man will not belie his professions whatever they may be. At any rate, the church that has met and survived misrepresentation and persecution for two thousand years is not going to strike her colors to the yelping curs of criticism within her fold.

Mayor Mitchel's wild charges were easily disproved. The youthful Mayor's effort to begot issues in the investigation of the New York Charity Board by attacking "correligionists" was nasty but futile. The men he stood for were indicted and he narrowly escaped the same fate. John Purroy made a fool of himself and ended his public career.

The Brooklyn Tablet is of the opinion that Mayor Mitchel has "lost his head." At this end of the line, says the Buffalo Union and Times, "the opinion seems to be that the young man not only has lost his head, but every particle of self-respect." From which there will be no dissent.

A society lady inquires of the Catholic Advance what is the best thing to do for a cold at this time of the year. The reverend editor advises her to go South, or if a society lady to put on more clothes. His prescription looks good.

His Grace Archbishop Messmer, of Milwaukee, has consented to act as an Honorary Vice President of the Irish Relief Fund Committee, organized in New York and now spreading throughout the country.

The latest English order-in-council places another heavy handicap on American exports. With the few exemptions granted the United States will suffer most. That's "hands across the sea" for you.

Gwynn C. Bush and bride, who was Miss Mary Cain, have returned from their wedding trip. They were quietly married last week at the Sacred Heart rectory, the Rev. Father Walsh performing the ceremony. The groom is an engineer on the L. H. and St. L. railroad, and his bride is a popular young lady of the West End.

Frederick Wilhem Stengel entertained a number of friends with a stag party and Dutch lunch in his new home, 4137 West Market street, on Thursday evening. His bowling team-mates surprised him by the presentation of their interest in a silver loving cup which had been won by the club in the recent bowling tournament.

Every week the Kentucky Irish American receives unsigned articles for publication. There is nothing objectionable in these, but writers should bear in mind the fact that signatures are absolutely necessary in all newspaper offices. Persons who desire their notices to appear must sign them. Surely you would not write to a friend without signing your name.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Emily Goss and Oscar Feldkamp, which will be solemnized with a nuptial mass at St. Vincent de Paul's church on the morning of June 25. The Rev. Father Thome, the pastor, will perform the ceremony. Miss Goss is well known in German Catholic society circles, and the groom-elect is a popular member of the traffic squad of the local police department.

EWING—READ.

A wedding of much interest will be that of Miss Kathleen O'Doherty Ewing and Lee S. Read, which will be solemnized with nuptial high mass at St. Louis Bertrand's church at 8:30 o'clock on the morning of June 28, the Rev. Father Crowley performing the ceremony. The bride will be given in marriage by her uncle, Judge Matthew O'Doherty. The bride's maid of honor and only attendant will be Miss Lucy O'Reilly, and Mr. Read's best man will be Louis Keely. The ushers will be Messrs. Rees Dickson and Louis Hackett.

NOTRE DAME.

The University of Notre Dame has secured, as the beginning of a great collection of curiosities to be housed in its beautiful new library, a large inscribed clay cylinder from Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon. This cylinder, which has 145 lines written on it in Hebrew, Nebuchadnezzar himself gives an account of his building of the walls of Babylon, which were one of the wonders of the ancient world, of the temples which Herodotus describes so elegantly and of the reconstruction of the great Tower of Birs, which many scholars have identified with the Biblical Tower of Babylon. The cylinder was found in the ancient city of Marada, a suburb of Babylon, in the walls of the temple where the great King had buried it as a perpetual record of his great building operations.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing
the Past Week—General
News Notes.

Division 4 will meet next Monday evening.

Many divisions throughout the country are subscribing to the Irish relief fund.

Division 3 of Rome, N. Y., conferred the three degrees on class of 100 on June 4.

The Hibernian Social Club of Division 3 will give a euchre June 29 on their lawn.

The Milwaukee Hibernians are getting ready for another big class initiation on June 21.

Milwaukee division, the largest in the country, will send seven delegates to the State convention.

San Francisco Hibernians will celebrate the Fourth of July with a monster field day at Schuetzen Park.

The Wisconsin State convention will be held at Oshkosh, opening August 21 and lasting three days.

Mrs. Richey, of New Albany, was one of the speakers at the Ladies Auxiliary county initiation at Indianapolis.

The younger members of Division 4 are preparing to give an invitation dance confined to members of that division.

Mrs. John Arthur, State President of the Ladies' Auxiliary, will be Indiana's candidate for the national directorate.

At the next meeting of Division 4 Thomas Lynch will announce the entertainment feature for the last meeting of the month.

Attorney W. P. McDonough will lecture on the workmen's compensation law to the members of Division 3 at the meeting of June 19.

Tuesday morning at Mission Dolores church, San Francisco, the Auxiliary had mass celebrated for the heroes of the New Irish republic.

The Building Committee of Division 2 of Syracuse has been meeting with splendid success and much interest is being manifested in the membership contest.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Milwaukee will celebrate its twenty-first anniversary tomorrow, when a class of fifty will be initiated, after which a banquet will be served.

The Ladies' Auxiliary county initiation at Indianapolis, where Mrs. James O'Donnell was hostess, proved most successful, seventy-five new members being received into the order.

A barberie, tug-of-war, a Verduin contest and a submarine competition are a few of the features announced for the annual reunion of Division 2 of San Francisco, the banner division of the coast.

A new division has been instituted in the Annunciation parish, Buffalo. Monsignor Biden, the pastor, made an eloquent plea, saying he hoped every live Irishman of his flock would become a member and make this the banner division of the city.

GOOD FERRY BILL.

Thomas F. Swift and company will headline the bill in the theater at Fontaine Ferry Park commencing with the matinee Sunday afternoon. He will present a musical skit called "Me and Mary," and his supporting company included Hazel Kelled and Fred Frazee Jacques.

A combination of melody, dancing and jollity is promised in the act of Ray Dooley, until recently a featured member of the Metropolitan Minstrels. In Emma Francis, who returns after quite an absence, one of vaudeville's most graceful and accomplished dancers will be seen.

Reputed to be the greatest card and coin manipulator in the world, Leipzeg will occupy a prominent position on the bill. Archie Onyi rounds out the programme with his juggling novelty. Bathers are admitted to the park free at all times. Sig. Natello is delighting patrons with the excellence of his programme. A new attraction, commencing Sunday, will be a pony

RECENT DEATHS.

The funeral of James P. Smith, 1427 South Sixth street, was held Tuesday morning from St. Louis Bertrand's church. Deceased had lived here for fifty years and was long engaged in the printing business and was a member of the Typographical Union. Surviving him are a wife and a son, Kelly Smith.

John Herberger, thirty-eight years old and son of the late Peter and Regina Herberger, died Sunday afternoon at his home, 716 South Shelly street, being ill only a few days. His funeral was held Wednesday morning from St. Martin's church, of which he had been a lifelong member. Surviving him are Peter Herberger and two other brothers.

Funeral services for William P. Lenihan, one of the best known railroad clerks in the city, were held from Holy Name church Monday morning, attended by a large number of mourning friends. He died Saturday morning from tuberculosi Besides his wife he leaves a child, his mother, two sisters and three brothers.

The funeral of Henry Ahmann took place Friday morning from the family residence, 1018 Dumesnil street, at 8:30 o'clock, and from St. Louis Bertrand's church at 9 o'clock. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise Ahmann (nee Boeschle), seven children, Mrs. William S. Jenkins, Mrs. John J. Hines, Fred, William, Frank, John and Benjamin Ahmann.

Mrs. Nora McFarland, beloved wife of Thomas McFarland, the well known grocer, died Tuesday morning at her home, 2923 Alford avenue, and the news caused widespread sorrow among friends. Besides her husband she leaves six children to whom is tendered the sympathy of a wide circle of acquaintances. The funeral was held Thursday morning from St. Michael's church, of which the deceased had long been a member.

After a long illness and prepared for the summons Patrick J. Hourigan, fifty years old and a well known machinist, passed away Wednesday evening at his home, 1215 Hull street. Surviving him are a sister, the wife of Lieut. John J. Maloney, of the police department, and three daughters, Miss Sarah Hourigan, Mrs. P. A. Duddy and Sister Mary Cleitus. The deceased was held in high esteem and his death is mourned by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

LIFE AN EXAMPLE.

Patrick Finegan, a well known resident of the Dominican parish, died Tuesday morning after a lingering illness at the home of his nieces, Mrs. Harry T. Fischer and Misses Mary and Nellie Finegan, 1039 South Sixth street. Mr. Finegan was sixty years of age and during his early career took a prominent part in the affairs of the Republican party, being a member of the Old Guard, and served as Superintendent of the Stamp Department of the Postoffice under the administration of Postmaster John Barrett and was the first purchaser of stamps in the new Postoffice. Later he served as Deputy Jailer under the late Dick Watts, and after that returned to work at his trade of machinist in the L. and N. shops. Mr. Finegan led a clean, wholesome life, and during his long career never earned the enmity of anyone, being fair and just in all of his dealings, political and otherwise. He is survived by one brother, John Finegan, of the Louisville Water Company; one nephew, Thomas Finegan, four nieces, Mrs. Peter Jenkins, Mrs. Harry T. Fischer, Misses Mary and Nellie Finegan. The funeral took place from St. Louis Bertrand's church Thursday morning with a solemn high requiem mass at 9 o'clock. Very Rev. Father Crowley, celebrant; Rev. Father Clark, deacon; Rev. Father Lyons, subdeacon.

BADLY MIXED.

The will of the late Edward J. Burke, night chief of the Western Union Telegraph Company, whose death occurred two weeks ago, provides for the payment of $1,000 for masses for the repose of the souls of the testator, his wife and son."

The above appeared as Louisville news in last week's Catholic Telegraph, and is so mixed as to be without excuse. The late Edward J. Burke, who long ago was Night Chief of Police here, died over a year ago in Rochester, where he had made his home for some time. The Night Chief of the Western Union, who died here May 19, was Patrick F. McCarthy, whose wife and son and daughter survive him.

ON LONG TRIP.

The Louisville ball club begins the first of its away from home series at St. Paul today, from there going in turn to the three other Western cities—Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Kansas City. The club should make the break even as St. Paul and Milwaukee should prove easy picking, while an even break ought to be gotten at the other towns. The hardest feature of the trip is that five games are in a row at Minneapolis and Cantillon's pitchers are going great guns at present.

The Colonels are in great shape and it is believed that Manager Clymer will stand pat on his present lineup. Platine in the field is an improvement over Farmer and no other change is necessary. Fans are indignant at the suggestion of removing Red Corridon from third, as his fielding is the best in the league and his batting, if not extra great just at present, is sure to improve.

ACADEMY AWARDS.

The following awards were made at Holy Rosary Academy: Mrs. Ruth Campbell, of Indianapolis, embroidered lunch set; Mrs. M. C. Elder, 616 Park avenue, oil painting;

Mrs. Josephine Hoertz, 932 East Madison street, hand painted vase.

Sisters of St. Martin last Saturday purchased forty-six acres of land near Melburn from Mrs. Belle Anderson for $18,500. The Sisters' quarters are at present in New York. They purchased the property with the expectation of building a new home.
